Board appoints Haddock interim superintendent

By BRENT MACEY

William H. Haddock, principal of Gulfview Elementary School, has been appointed superintendent of the Hancock County School District.

He was appointed by the school board during a special meeting Friday, some 39 hours after former Superintendent Billy D. Sills pled guilty to felony charges of embezzlement-fraud and was automatically removed from office.

Haddock will assume the responsibilities of superintendent until a special election is conducted to fill the superintendent position.

He said Friday he would not seek the post of superintendent in the special election.

Walter Gex, attorney for the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, stated he expects Joseph Gex, attorney for the Hancock County School Board, to address the supervisors at their regularly scheduled meeting Monday and request a special election be conducted.

The supervisors will probably request the County Election Commission to set an election at the next possible date," Gex said.

He noted the election commission is responsible for setting the date of the special election. The supervisors can only request the election commission set the date.

Following Sills' removal from office Wednesday, Hinds County prosecutors agreed to drop charges he filed a false state income tax return.

Hinds County Assistant District Attorney Cynthia Hewes stated charges were dropped against Sills because he agreed to plead guilty to a felony charge, was removed from office, and ordered to pay back the money to the Hancock County School Board.

Sills pled guilty to accepting $7,500 from Bay Contractors—a firm hired by the School Board to repair a Gulfview Elementary School after it was damaged by a tornado in May of 1980.

Sills testified in the Hancock County Courthouse Wednesday that R.D. (Bob) Rippetoe, president of Bay Contractors, gave him the $7,500 over a seven week period while work was being done at the school.

Payments from the school board to Bay Contractors coincided with

Library renovation begins

The Waveland Library will be closed for the renovation until further notice beginning Tuesday, Aug. 3, according to Prima Wusnack, Hancock County Library System director.

"Because we are renovating the present library building as well as adding on, it is necessary to suspend library services at the branch for at least six weeks," said Ms. Wusnack.

"Until then Waveland Library users, are asked to use the headquarters library on US Hwy 90 in Bay St. Louis.

"Books can be returned to the book drop on Ulman Avenue behind the headquarters library or left at the Waveland Drug Store on Coleman Avenue where they will be picked up each day by a library staff member," she continued.

The addition to the Waveland Library includes a library activity room and foyer, public restrooms, office, staff lounge, periodicals storage room, and equipment storage areas.

A lobby with built-in circulation desk units will connect the present building to the new construction.

Renovation to the structure will include removing walls which now divide the building into two rooms; installation of carpeting, suspended ceiling, lighting, a new roof; rewiring; and painting.

The interior layout is also being rearranged to provide for an enlarged adult reading area, a children's alcove, magazine browsing area, and reference section.

The Hancock County Library System had applied to the Mississippi Library Commission in 1976 for a state grant to renovate and enlarge the Waveland branch.

In 1981 the library received notice that $75,000 in state revenue sharing funds were available for the project if the grant could be matched locally.

The local money is being provided by the City of Waveland, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, and the Hancock County Library System.

The Bourgeois-Stieffel-Ray American Legion and the Bay Waveland Rotary Club also made donations towards matching the grant.

Although project funds included money for additional shelving, furniture, and equipment, Ms. Wusnack reports that the budget for these items had to be reduced considerably since construction costs were higher than anticipated.

She noted, however, that since receiving the original grant several individuals and organizations have made memorial contributions for furnishings.

"We hope to be able to purchase all the furniture and equipment needed for the larger facility through private donations," she said.

Completion date for the entire construction project is set for December.

FROM OUTER SPACE TO INNER SPACE—The National Marine Fisheries Service at NSTL for the last few weeks has provided Ocean Engineering International Inc. of Houston, Tex. with logistics support in the testing of two unique, state-of-the-art, self-contained deep-sea submersibles in a 240,000 gallon marine tank at the Test Site. The submersible Wasp, shown here looking more like an R2-D2 character from an out-of-space movie, is really a one-man diving suit which is being tested in the 35-foot deep tank to check its operational capability, instrument performance and systems integrity. John

Brucks, physical oceanographer with the Fisheries Service and liaison for the project, said, "This activity is a prime example of spinoffs from the NASA program." The tank, 33 feet in diameter, was originally designed to support exploration of outer space and was used to check out Saturn V second stages. The Fisheries Service later refurbished the facility to test marine systems with applications to fisheries research. "In this fashion, our scientific horizons are broadened through exploration of inner space as well as outer space," Brucks said. (Photos courtesy of NSTL)

Chamber endorses education measure

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors voted at its Tuesday night meeting to endorse a state constitutional amendment providing for an appointed, lay state board of education, according to Chamber President L.J. Breaux.

"The chamber, along with the Mississippi Economic Council, feels that one of the most important steps we can take this year to improve education in Mississippi is to give full support to the proposed constitutional amendment," said Breaux.

Presently, the Mississippi Constitution provides for a three-member state board of education, consisting of the secretary of state, the attorney general and the superintendent of public education, according to information provided by the Mississippi Economic Council.

The information also states that "education expenses for the school system for which the board is responsible have increased by almost $500 million in the past 12 years alone."

"The question has been raised as to whether a three-member ex-officio board—two of whom have full-time responsibilities in other areas of government—effectively administer a public education system which involves almost a half million children and expenses of $742 million and which is expected to grow."

The constitutional amendment, which was approved by the 1982 legislature and which will appear on a Nov. 2 ballot, provides for the creation of an appointed, lay state board of education consisting of nine members.

Five of the nine would be appointed by the governor, two appointed by the lieutenant governor and two by the speaker of the House of Representatives.

The members would be appointed to staggered terms, assuring that no governor, after the first, would appoint a majority of the board during his four-year term.

Provisions are also made in the amendment for geographical and professional representation, with one appointment to be filled by a school teacher and one by a school administrator. After the first appointments, members would serve terms of nine years.

The amendment also allows for an appointed state superintendent of education, with the new board responsible for the appointment, subject to Senate approval.

The superintendent would then serve at the pleasure of the board.

"The Chamber believes such an appointment would help to remove the state's chief public school executive from the field of politics and encourage his selection on the basis of professional qualifications rather than political influence," Breaux feels.

deposits Sills made in a bank within 72 hours later.

Sills was ordered to pay back $9,000 to the school board; a total of $7,500 in restitution to the school board, court costs, and ten percent interest incurred from the date the money was allegedly accepted.

A five-year prison sentence was suspended and Sills was placed on three years probation.

The charge of fraud-embezzlement, to which Sills pled guilty, was substituted to replace a charge of 'inducement to award a contract' handed down by an April term Hancock County Grand Jury. Since Sills pled guilty to fraud-embezzlement instead of inducement to award a contract, he may be able to obtain a license to teach if the State Board of Education conducts a hearing and decides to permit that.

A plea of guilty to charges of inducement to award a contract would have prohibited Sills from ever holding any public employment in Mississippi.

Other penalties under that charge could have resulted in a prison sentence, a fine, or both.

The reduced charges were agreed to by Sills' Attorney Richard Dymond of Gulfport, the District Attorney's office, the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, the Mississippi Ethics Commission, and the Mississippi State Highway Patrol.

District Attorney Albert Necaise stated in court that all those parties had agreed to the state's recommended punishment.

In court, Circuit Court Judge Kosta Vlahos questioned Necaise concerning why the state was recommending a suspended sentence with restitution and parole.

Necaise claimed removal from office and the loss of public trust is 'more painful than sitting around the Hancock County Jail.'

He noted Sills had no prior record, that he holds a master's degree and that he has taught school in the county for more than 20 years.

'He is being blackened by a felony... 50 years from now it will still show up... Anyone will be able to see he took money from the little school children of Hancock County and he will never live that down.'

He noted Sills will have to visit a parole officer once a week or once a month, and receive permission to leave the state.

However, Necaise told the judge the state has no objection to Sills leaving the state without such permission.

The DA also said he doesn't feel Sills should be obliged to routinely report to a probation officer.

No mention was made of a $10 per month payment to the Mississippi Department of Corrections to help support the probation officer—a court order which often accompanies a suspended sentence with probation.

'I feel there are ways to punish people other than to put them behind bars,' Necaise said.

He noted law enforcement agencies agreed with the recommended punishment and felt 'it was not only a fair disposition but a just disposition.'

'As a District Attorney I have the responsibility to the people of this county, to the citizens and the defendant to be fair and just,' he said.

He noted Rippetoe never pled guilty to charges of false pretense although he was later found guilty by a jury.

He stated Sills was admitting that he had done wrong.

Youth sentenced to seven years

By BRENT MACEY

A Bay St. Louis youth was sentenced to serve seven years in the state penitentiary after pleading guilty to a second offense of burglary.

Neal Hampton, 19, of 518 Demottin Avenue was on probation from another burglary charge when he was arrested last May and charged with stealing three cases of Budweiser beer from a Waveland residence.

Circuit Court Judge Kosta Vlahos sentenced Hampton to four years in the State Penitentiary. The four years is to run concurrently with a seven-year probation revocation.

Also in Circuit Court, a father and son were placed on two years probation after a seven year prison sentence was suspended.

George R. Thompson, 53, and Robert Thompson 22, each were charged with possession of marijuana with intent to deliver.

Both were also required to pay a $2,500 fine and court costs.

George Thompson, the father, stated he attempted to plant corn, but when it didn't grow he planted marijuana instead.

'It grew a lot better than the corn,' he said.

Man facing charges of growing marijuana

A Waveland man was arrested Friday night and charged with growing, cultivating and possessing marijuana. Charles L. Kinsey, 24, of 606 Old Spanish Trail was in Hancock County Jail Saturday under a $5,000 bond.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said his office received a call from a confidential informant.

Officers from the Sheriff's Department and the Waveland Police Department searched Kinsey's residence at approximately 5 p.m. Friday. Peterson said a number of large marijuana plants were discovered growing behind Kinsey's house and approximately one-half a pound of newly processed marijuana was found inside the house.

A pretrial hearing is set before Justice Court Judge Horatio Frierson Aug. 11, at 11 p.m.

Peterson said Kinsey gave police a written statement confessing to growing and possessing the marijuana.

Sand found guilty, sentencing postponed

By BRENT MACEY
Sentencing of former Bay St. Louis Police Officer Nella C. (Chris) Sand, 35, was postponed 30-40 days Friday until a pre-sentence report can be prepared. Circuit Court Judge Kosta Vlahos noted the sentencing will be conducted in Hancock County.

Sand was found guilty Thursday of conspiracy to commit mayhem after a two-day trial.

He was charged with conspiring with Boballa Bharatkumar, former operator of the Driftwood Motel in Bay St. Louis, to blind or cripple a man in Pascagoula who allegedly owed Bharatkumar money.

A hearing to set a sentence was scheduled for Friday. However, after several character witnesses testified for the defense, Vlahos ordered a pre-sentence report be prepared due to the serious nature of the crime and the fact that Sand was once a police officer.

Two character witnesses testified Friday before the hearing was cut short by Vlahos.

Both Bay St. Louis Police Chief Douglas Williams and County Coroner Carl Banderet stated they would be concerned for Sand's safety if he was sentenced to the penitentiary.

Maximum sentence for the offense is five years in the penitentiary.

Just prior to the hearing, Defense Attorneys William Frisbie and James Tucker III, argued to have a mistrial declared.

Tucker, who argued the motion, noted Vlahos left the courtroom to perform a marriage ceremony late Wednesday when the jury was deliberating.

Vlahos' appointed Attorney Michael Haas to preside over the court in his absence.

However, the jury had difficulties with one of the court's instructions regarding what should be considered during deliberation.

Vlahos could not be reached to give advice to the jurors so Haas recessed the jury until 9:30 a.m. the next day.

Tucker argued a 1986 case requires the judge to be present throughout the trial.

However, Vlahos overruled granting a mistrial on grounds that a 1971 ruling preempts the earlier ruling.

During the trial, Sand testified he was staying at the Driftwood Motel when he was approached by Bharatkumar and asked if he knew of anyone who could rough someone up in Pascagoula.

Sand stated he laughed and thought Bharatkumar was joking.

Later that day Bharatkumar approached Sand and asked the same question, Sand said.

Several days later Sand arranged a meeting between David Green, himself and Bharatkumar at the Driftwood Motel.

Sand said he wanted Bharatkumar to offer Green money in his presence so he could arrest the motel operator.

However, no money exchanged hands at that meeting and another meeting was set for the purpose of having Bharatkumar give Green money as down payment for the job.

Sand never attended that meeting because he claimed he never thought Bharatkumar was serious or would ever follow through with the plan.

Testimony by both Green and Sand revealed the three discussed injuring M.K. Desai at the first meeting.

Green testified that Sand suggested Desai be blinded by having battery acid thrown in his face.

Sand claimed he was only restating an idea expressed by Bharatkumar.

Testimony revealed that Green requested Sand attend the second meeting and that Sand refused to go.

Green did attend the meeting however, and was bugged by electronic equipment donated by law enforcement personnel.

At that meeting testimony revealed Bharatkumar gave $100 to Green as down payment for the job. Members of the Mississippi Highway Patrol, the Bureau of Narcotics and the Hancock County Sheriff's department arrested Bharatkumar and Sand the next day.

Throughout the trial Sand maintained he was going along with Bharatkumar until he could make an arrest when money changed hands.

He claimed he never took Bharatkumar seriously and for that reason abandoned his investigation before the final meeting.

During the testimony, Assistant District Attorney John (Sonny) Johnson asked Sand if he had ever contacted anyone about his conversations with Bharatkumar.

When Sand said he had told former Hancock County Sheriff's Department Auxiliary Deputy James Osborne about his conversations, Osborne was immediately subpoenaed by Johnson.

Osborne testified he had been approached by Sand and asked if he wanted to make a lot of money.

Osborne said he refused to become involved in the affair.

After refusing to become a part of the alleged plot, Osborne testified that Sand threatened to hurt his wife if he discussed with or told anyone of Sand's involvement with the motel operator.

Bits 'n pieces

We want to wish a belated happy Golden Anniversary to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lang who celebrated the big occasion yesterday.

Since my father worked with Mr. Lang in a grocery store when they both were teenagers, our friendship goes back a very long time.

We received several letters of appreciation in recent days.

One was from John V. Corro, associate director of alumni affairs for Mississippi State University.

We are glad the Hancock County chapter had a large attendance last week at their Diamondhead gathering.

Mrs. Roger Merrifield dropped us a note of appreciation on our coverage of Our Lady's Academy efforts in preparation of buildings for the opening of school this month.

We feel it is very good for Our Lady Academy's having so many parents and friends with so much community spirit for the wonderful school in Bay St. Louis.

In two short weeks school bells will be again ringing in our communities.

One thing of importance for students starting school is having the proper immunizations against certain childhood diseases.

The shots for first graders and out-of-state transfer students are a requirement before attending schools.

We checked with the State Board of Health's office on Dunbar and were told several youngsters starting in the first grade have been getting their shots.

The schedule for the shots at the Health Department is on Monday's from 1-4 p.m. and Thursday's from 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1-4 p.m.

We hope parents will not wait until the last minute to have this important task handled.

While on the subject of school starting, we have heard comments from several parents who cannot wait for the opening.

With the students, well in most cases it is the other way around.

Maybe we are getting old, but the summers sure seem to be getting shorter. And whoever heard of going to school before Labor Day.

Interests rates lower on illegal money

Dear Sir:

It was with total disbelief and shock that I read in the local newspapers the accounts of the sentencing of the Hancock County Superintendent of Education for embezzlement by fraud.

By stretching my charity to the breaking point, I can accept the suspended sentence in view of the fact that every man is entitled to one mistake.

However, I have more than mixed emotions about the possibility of the reinstatement of his teacher's license.

But never in a million years would I have guessed or been able to conjure up in my wildest imagination that criminals could be allowed to make restitution for embezzled funds (public funds, to boot!) at 10 percent interest.

This is a much lower rate of interest than hard working, law-abiding citizens must pay for legally obtained funds for the purchase of or improvements to homes, property, etc.

I am afraid we are fast approaching the time when deterrents to crime will be virtually non-existent. And when that time arrives, I certainly hope those public officials whose salaries are paid with tax dollars and who are entrusted to protect the interest of the taxpayer, will be willing to take their fair share of the blame.

If our tax-supported courts do not soon clench their fists and come down hard on criminals, whether they are dressed in jeans and leather jackets or silk suits, we can say good-bye to the values and principles upon which this country was founded and which some of us are trying to teach to our youngsters.

Sincerely,

Powerline supporters shunned public hearings

July 30, 1982
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,

It is appalling that so many of the local politicians and business leaders have been blinded by the blitz conducted by Mississippi Power regarding the proposed 500 KV line.

It is incredible that they would support a project of this kind without benefit of all information available to them.

The local politicians and business leaders did not attend the hearings before the Public Service Commission, yet they consider themselves sufficiently knowledgeable to endorse the proposed line with great fervor.

What is best for Mississippi Power is not necessarily best for the people. Homes will be destroyed and families will be disrupted. A way of life is in jeopardy.

Positive proof of adverse effects on health and environment is sure to come soon.

Property values and lifetime investments will go down the drain. Seventy-seven miles of beautiful land in the much sought after "sun belt" will be marred—condemned forever!

It will be used only as an "electric corridor" for transmitting that good, cheap, electricity from Plant Daniel to Gulf States Utilities in Louisiana and Texas.

The citizens of Hancock, Pearl River, Harrison, and Jackson counties will have the country-side defaced with a 200 foot right-of-way extending for 77 miles.

It will be adorned with 130 foot steel towers and a maze of high voltage wires overhead.

The plant life underneath and nearby will be brown from the use of herbicides. Pretty picture?

But that isn't all! With full capacity operation at Plant Daniel, the people of these counties can look forward to heavily polluted air to breathe and acid rain to fill their ponds and streams.

Such a waste! Such a short-sighted view!

Bay PD assists beyond line of duty

July 27, 1982
Chief of Police
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

Too often our law enforcement people are criticized or accused of not doing their duty.

It is a genuine pleasure to have this opportunity to bring to your attention an instance of two police officers from Bay St. Louis going beyond the call of normal duty to give assistance.

My son Douglas and I took the weekend off from our coaching jobs (his in Lafayette, La., mine at the University of Southern Mississippi, in Hattiesburg) to stay at our camp in Clermont Harbor and enjoy fishing and floundering on the coast.

On Friday night, while we were floundering under the Bay St. Louis bridge, someone broke into my son's truck, parked just off Highway 90, stole an ice chest (containing all our food and drinks for the weekend), and then proceeded to steal the battery from the truck.

They didn't just lift the battery out, but actually cut the cables.

We called the Bay St. Louis City Police, and our call was promptly answered by Officers Wilbert Dorsey and Barbara Ellspermann.

These two officers stayed with us until they solved our problem by driving us to the Police Station, where Officer Dorsey removed the battery from his personal van, loaned it to us, and helped us "rig it up" into the damaged truck.

We returned to Clermont Harbor, where we had a boat battery which we used in the truck; then we drove back to Bay St. Louis to return Officer Dorsey's battery to him.

Doug and I want to thank these two officers for their generous help to two stranded fishermen. Their friendly and helpful attitude was exactly what we needed after the distressing discovery we had been "ripped off."

CONSUMER REPORT

BILL ALLAIN
ATTORNEY GENERAL

"HOW TO COMPLAIN EFFECTIVELY"

Attorney General Bill Allain says that often consumers have problems with products they purchase, but don't know the most effective way to complain about it.

Allain stated that before you make a complaint, ask yourself:

Did I follow the care and usage instructions carefully? Did I use the product as it was intended to be used? Did I have reasonable expectations for the performance of the product in use? If the answer to these questions are "yes," you may have a legitimate complaint.

Follow these guidelines to make an effective complaint:

* Assemble sales slips, guarantees, and all supporting facts about your product. Next, isolate your general complaint to one of the following: product, service, issue, or violation of the law.

* Pursue your complaint as soon as possible while it is still fresh in your mind. Go to the merchant or company where the product was purchased and talk to the salesperson who sold the product to you. If the company has a refund or exchange office, it would be best to start there.

* If the first person you contact cannot help you, go to his or her superior. Continue on up the line until you receive satisfaction. If necessary, contact the owner, president, or chairman of the board.

* Explain your problem clearly and without hesitation. Be courteous, yet firm in your approach. Be in control of your emotions. Losing your temper will only aggravate matters. Have all of your supporting facts, information, documents, and receipts with you in the appropriate order. Be sure to make a note of the name of the individual with whom you are filing your complaint.

* If you cannot go to the company, then put the complaint in writing. Sometimes a letter will get better results than a phone call or a personal visit. If the complaint is made in writing, be sure to keep a carbon or photocopy of your letter of the complaint and any materials you send along with it. Be sure to keep copies of any letters, cards, or notices you receive in response to your complaint.

* Many consumer problems can be handled best between the consumer and the seller. Reputable businesses will make an effort to untangle problems and meet reasonable satisfaction or offer to direct the complaint to someone who can.

* After a complaint has been filed with a company, wait a reasonable amount of time for your complaint to be settled. If your complaint in full is rejected, consider compromising by making your own offer of settlement or some reasonable amount or terms.

DECEPTIVE SALES PRACTICES

Attorney General Bill Allain says that while most businesses are run legitimately, consumers should still be on the lookout for the occasional unscrupulous business.

Allain states that "bait and switch" is perhaps one of the most common and yet most subtle deceptive practices. Bait and switch involves first "baiting" a consumer with an advertisement for an appealing inexpensive item.

When the consumer visits the store, however, and asks to see the advertised merchandise, the salesperson discourages his purchase and attempts to sell a higher priced product, the "switch."

Stores are not allowed to advertise for the purpose of attracting customers with the intent of pressuring them into buying a more expensive product. The following "lines" are common which salespersons may use to get consumers to switch to higher priced items:

-The refusal to sell or demonstrate advertised product.

-The item is sold out.

-Criticism by the salesperson of the advertised product.

-Refusal to take orders for the advertised merchandise.

-That product is defective. Try this one.

"Bait and switch" schemes are both fraudulent and illegal. For additional information, contact Allain, Consumer Protection Division, P.O. Box 228, Jackson, Mississippi 39201.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

On several occasions you have written about how an ad should be put together. But, could you go through it all, one more time? I Have Trouble Remembering.

Dear IHTR: So do I, and I won't promise this is the last time.

But, to break it down, there are basically five main ingredients or components in an ad.

These include: 1) Illustrations, 2) Headlines, 3) Copy, 4) Name or Logo, and 5) White Space.

Let's take them in order, week by week.

Thirdly, copy (a quite-often overlooked or underdeveloped part of the ad) may be the most important. It is the most important, if the other parts function well.

For this is the main message of the ad.

Any attention or interest created by graphics or headline messages is finally parlayed into business by the copy. It is the nitty-gritty part of the ad; the details that finalize the sale.

The structure is not as important as inclusion of all necessary information to complete the decision to buy product. But structure is the framework that size, cost, guarantees, etc., should be included.

Some ad writers use a structure similar to that used by speech writers. First, by whatever means, create a need. Then proceed to tell how the advertised item or service meets that need.

Thirdly, give proof and relate all the ways the prospect will profit by your product or service.

Finally, give a means and a reason to act now.

This approach is generally for long copy.

A shorter version is to list the following benefits in this order: 1) the most obvious (to get support), 2) the most long-lasting (to show value and prudence), and 3) the most dramatic (to get immediate response).

But, again, the structure is not as important as including all the necessary details.

An advertisement is usually an ad without a headline. It may get a little worried, but it generally doesn't flinch.

State participating in OSHA experimental program

Mississippi is one of seven southern and southwestern states taking part in a Department of Labor Occupational Safety and Health Administration experimental program.

The program is designed to further use the federal agency's onsite consultation service and to augment its limited inspection staff, explained Henry Laird, director of the Mississippi State Department of Health Occupational Safety and Health Branch. Effective July 12, 1982, through January 12, 1983, the experimental program is being conducted in Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. Some 836,000 workplaces in these seven states employ about 12.7 million people.

"This initiative will further our goal to make the fullest use of all the resources available to us for the protection of the American worker," said Assistant Secretary of Labor Thorne G. Auchter, who heads OSHA.

"Firms which undergo a comprehensive consultation visit covering both safety and health, correct all serious hazards identified, and establish and/or maintain an effective safety and health program will be exempt for one year from general schedule inspection by OSHA," he said.

The program will eliminate inspections where federally-funded consultants have already assured correction of serious hazards, thus freeing OSHA compliance staff to visit more hazardous workplaces.

Mississippi employers can get details for applying and participating in the program by contacting the OSHA Branch, Mississippi State Department of Health, P.O. Box 1700, Jackson, MS 39205, telephone 601-982-6315.

The exemption offered through the program is expected to give employers further incentive for using the no cost, penalty-free advice offered by consultants and to encourage self-help and self-inspection at the individual worksite level.

Though participating employers will be exempt from general schedule inspections, OSHA will continue to respond to worker complaints and conduct inspections of serious accidents.

The program includes only fixed establishments. Construction and longshoring operations are excluded for now, though similar programs for them may be considered in the future.

In addition to surveying to identify hazards and establish abatement dates, a consultant will encourage employers to develop and use internal complaint procedures, review the employer's safety and health programs, and if the programs not effective, help make it so.

On completion of the experimental program, OSHA will evaluate effectiveness and decide whether to extend it to other states and jurisdictions under federal enforcement. OSHA spends more than $20 million annually on consultation, funding 90 percent of the cost in states and territories where the program is run by state governments or universities.

ABUNDANT WATER RESOURCES—Almost a fifth of an acre of water is required to support the average Mississippian each year, and this resource ranks as one of the state's most abundant. Mississippi enjoys 349,290 acres of surface water and not including the 438,167 acres of the Mississippi Sound, pictured here at Long Beach. The largest river in the Mississippi. Other large rivers include the Pascagoula, Yazoo, Tennessee and Pearl. Major reservoirs are the Ross Barnett, Granddams, Sardis, Enid, Arkabutla and Osage. Many other large lakes also dot the state. Mississippians use these large bodies of water for navigation, flood control, industrial cooling, commercial fishing and recreation. A Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service publication (LUP-58) describes how land is used within the state. The publication is free upon request from the Land Use Center, P.O. Mississippi to be featured in Agricultural exposition

Just staying in business takes all the know-how a Mississippi farmer can muster, but this year the Southeast's largest farm show aims to help.

Mississippi will be the featured state at the Sunbelt Agricultural Exposition scheduled in Moultrie, Ga. for Oct. 12-14.

"Our Sunbelt Expo can be a valuable tool for a Mississippi farmer willing to search out ways to improve his operation," said Dr. Joe Burnside, Expo coordinator.

In its fifth year, the expo will offer Mississippi farmers, as well as other farmers from across the South, solid agricultural information, workable techniques and results from tests, plots, demonstration fields and research.

Over 60 exhibitors in the 80-acre exhibit area will offer full service, including equipment and knowledge related to agriculture. The exhibit includes just a sampling of the many products and services available to the farmer.

One in the 80 acres of test plots and demonstration fields, farmers can watch harvest and "chill" demonstrations in action throughout the three-day show.

They can compare performance of various tractors, tillage implements and grain combines. They can see the latest in grain storage and handling equipment. They can see the latest in grain storage and handling equipment. They can see the latest in grain storage and handling equipment.

growing crops more efficiently. Throughout the event, they will be sharing their findings and advising farmers on new techniques.

Joe Burnside, said the show is designed "primarily to exhibit and demonstrate the latest advancements in farm power, machinery and related equipment. Goal is to expose the public to current developments in scientific knowledge and recommend practices related to agricultural marketing, production and management.

To meet that goal, the show depends heavily on grant-in-aid equipment, supplies and services, including over $270,000 worth of irrigation equipment.

Expo "house" the largest working collection of irrigation equipment in the Southeast, including two new systems being installed for the 1982 event.

The Sunbelt Expo offers special highlights for the entire family, called the Consumer-Family Living Show. It features continuous stage programs and entertainment by consumer specialists and performers. Alongside the stage is a tent lined with almost 100 exhibitors aiming at the consumer, home and family management fields.

The Sunbelt Expo is the result of close cooperation among educational institutions and agribusiness industry. Its sponsors are the University of Georgia College of Agriculture; city of Moultrie; Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College; Progressive Farmer magazine; and the Georgia Department of Agriculture in cooperation with Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

Nine agencies to set aside small business R&D funds

At least $275 million in federal research and development funds will go to small businesses each year when the Small Business Innovation Development Act is fully effective, the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) estimates.

The Act, signed into law by President Reagan last week, requires nine federal agencies to negotiate with small businesses for a part of research and development funds.

Each of the agencies—Defense, NASA, Health and Human Services, Energy, Transportation, National Science Foundation, Agriculture, Environmental Protection Agency and National Regulatory Commission—must create a Small Business Innovation Research Program (SBIR) beginning October 1.

SBA will issue policy guidance implementing the Act and then oversee its activities.

SBA's Acting District Director Mike Shelton said, "The basic purpose of the Act is to strengthen the role of small innovation companies in federally-funded research and development. The Act also provides incentives to convert the research results from small science and high-technology firms into commercial applications."

"Small businesses, of course, will benefit from the Act, but equally significant will be the potential benefits to the nation. Small businesses have proved themselves to be more innovative than large companies; small firms, for example, have been responsible for more than half of the new product and service innovations since World War II. And almost every energy-related innovation of the past century has come from small business, Shelton continued.

As President Reagan said in signing the legislation, "Small business is a tonic for what ails this country. By passing and signing this Act, we're showing our resolve to unleash this most innovative sector." The Act requires that the eight civilian agencies set aside for small businesses two-tenths of one percent of their outside R&D budget in Fiscal 1983, with the set-aside total rising to 1.25 percent in Fiscal 1987.

Defense must set aside one-tenth of one percent of its outside budget in 1983 and has five years in which to reach the 1.25 percent total. "Our estimates," Shelton said, "show that in Fiscal 1983, the year beginning October 1, upwards of $50 million in R&D funds will go to small firms. In 1988, this range is estimated to be $400 million and in Fiscal 1987, when the Act becomes fully effective, approximately $450 million will go to small firms."

In addition to establishing SBIR programs, the Act requires federal agencies with R&D budgets of more than $20 million to create goals for small business R&D contracts. Those goals for any year cannot be less than the amount spent with small business the preceding fiscal year.

"SBA," Shelton said, "will issue policy directives governing general operations of SBIR programs. In carrying out this responsibility, we intend to make sure that paperwork and regulations be kept to a minimum and be clear and simple. We intend to place the minimum possible paperwork and regulatory burden on small firms that are capable and desire to take part in federal R&D."

SBA's Washington office has created a special SBA task force to write SBIR regulations and supervise the Act. The task force will be headed by Donald R. Templeman, who had been serving as Deputy SBA Administrator.

Shelton noted that the Small Business Innovation Development Act was patterned after a small business innovation research program initiated by National Science Foundation (NSF) in 1977. "That program," Shelton said, "has been highly successful. NSF so far has received more than 3,000 proposals from small firms and has funded more than 300 projects."

"The federal funds involved in the NSF program total about $16 million; following private funding totals nearly three times the federal investment. Employment in small firms completing NSF contracts has increased 125 percent—a sure sign that our new SBIR effort will pay handsome rewards."

LET'S REMEMBER WHY WE ALL NEED TO CRY A LITTLE.

How many of us remember our first inoculation? Maybe we didn't quite understand the pain—but we didn't get measles, either. Or diphtheria. Or a host of diseases we're protected from because we live in this century.

So what's the main danger now? Neglecting to get inoculated. Taking our prized protection for granted and risking our children's health. Fortunately, most states now require immunization against certain childhood diseases when a child starts school. By consulting your physician, you'll stay alert to all the inoculations your children need as they grow up.

Remembering helps. Polio was a dread disease as recently as 30 years ago. Let's not let it happen again. Our kids need protection, even if it means they have to cry a little.

Alternative housing opportunities listed

Housing specialist Frances Fortenberry has a list of alternatives for people who must make a residence change for some reason or who can't afford the housing they want.

Fortenberry, a housing specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said people faced with the prospect of providing housing for themselves should not be too discouraged.

She said there are at least five housing alternatives they can explore.

Among the alternatives on Miss Fortenberry's list are smaller housing, expandable housing, remodeled housing, shared housing and mobile homes.

Some specifics about each type of alternative housing include:

—A smaller house.

"A smaller house can contain as much quality and as many amenities as you can afford," she said. "Smaller houses need not look cheap or feel cramped. There are techniques for opening up a small house.

"Smaller scale furniture is one idea. Light colors is another."

Miss Fortenberry said many homeowners are moving to smaller houses to reduce expenses, particularly utility costs.

"Household help is hard to find, so the smaller house is easier for the owners to clean and keep," she said.

—Expandable housing
"Build two bedrooms now with plans to add a third one and a second bath later," Miss Fortenberry said.

She said plans for an expandable house are available through the Extension Service.

—Remodeling.
"Many families remodel their present home or buy an older one with that idea in mind," Miss Fortenberry said. "Sometimes paint, wallpaper or other minor changes can greatly improve a less expensive house."

—Shared housing.
"Sharing a house with someone is a way to reduce housing expenses and a way that is growing in popularity," Miss Fortenberry said. "Non-related singles, elderly couples and single parents are opting for this way to get a roof over their heads."

"There must be a lot of give and take in a sharing situation, a lot of understanding, patience and willingness to compromise. It can work."

Miss Fortenberry said builders are now offering homes with two master bedrooms for those who want to share.

—Mobile homes.
"Mobile homes have been upgraded and improved, and are now an acceptable alternative as a place to live," Miss Fortenberry said.

"Double wides are particularly acceptable in appearance and space."

Miss Fortenberry urged potential homeowners to be sure mobile homes are adequately insulated.

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

NOT ALL AGENTS ARE REALTORS

QUESTION: I recently referred to someone showing me a house as a realtor and was told by the person that she was not a realtor. Aren't all real estate brokers realtors? L.P. Jackson

ANSWER: Dear L.P.
The term realtor is often used to identify anyone who deals in the buying and selling of real estate, but the usage is incorrect.

Not all real estate brokers and salespersons are realtors and it is incorrect to refer to these nonmembers as realtors.

Realtor is a trademarked term used to denote a broker or salesperson who is a member of the National Association of Realtors.

The National Association of Realtors is the largest and best-known real estate organization in the world with a current membership of 700,000.

Active brokers who maintain membership in the association may use the term realtor and their salespersons hold membership on a realtor-associate status.

There is a recent trend to provide only one class of membership to both brokers and salespersons.

The organization is represented through state associations and 1,780 local boards.

Of particular interest are three features of the organization. First, membership in NAR requires a person to subscribe to the organization's code of ethics, which is a strict guide of ethical practice and serves as a guideline for practitioners.

Second, the association participates actively as a spokesman for the real estate industry and maintains a full-time staff in Chicago and Washington, D.C., to provide testimony on important real estate-related issues before Congress and various regulatory agencies.

Third, the association provides extensive educational programs through its nine professional institutes, societies and councils. In addition to offering courses and seminars to its members, these professional groups also award professional designations for qualified members.

Such designations—obtained only after minimum experience, education and demonstration work—show that a person is interested in improving his or her ability to serve the public better.

CHOOSE BROKER CAREFULLY

QUESTION: Two months have passed since we listed our house with a friend who owns a local brokerage firm. So far nothing has happened although she assures us she will sell our house. We think we should have chosen another broker and wonder what advice you can give us. E.R., Jackson

ANSWER: Dear E.R.,
As you now undoubtedly know, one of the most, if not the most, critical decisions you must make before selling your home is the selection of a professional brokerage firm.

Quite often the broker is the key to a successful sale. If and when your current listing expires without the house having been sold, consider the following questions in making your choice of another broker.

Can the broker properly assess the value of your home in relation to recent sales in the area? An overpriced home may sit on the market for quite some time. This is especially critical when a number of houses are for sale.

Is the brokerage firm widely known, and does it have a viable advertising campaign and a sales force large enough to adequately service the listing? You certainly should expect more than a "For Sale" sign in your front yard.

Can the brokerage firm provide wide knowledge of your listing? You want to do business with someone who knows your particular property, its features and strong selling points.

Can the broker provide current and accurate information on financing and the availability of mortgage funds in the local area? In today's market when buyers are so conscious of interest rates and monthly payments, the well-informed broker is in the best position to sell property.

Visit and talk with several brokers. Then list your house with the brokerage firm you feel offers the most competent and useful services.

For answers to questions, write Dr. Dennis Tosh, P.O. Box 295, University, MS 38677.

TOMATO COMBOS

One of the most frequently asked questions has been on canning combination foods. Tomato sauces, tomato vegetable juices, tomato vegetable mixtures. Recommended processing times have not been established. Recipes vary, amounts of various ingredients vary, therefore acidity levels vary. If the mixture is thick, heat penetration to the center of the jar may not be adequate.

Although some tomato-vegetable mixtures may have a low pH (be classified as a high-acid combination), we must recommend these mixtures be processed just like the low acid ingredient that requires the longest processing time. Until recipes have been thoroughly researched and processing times determined, it's best to can foods separately and combine them when you get ready to serve them.

CANNING PEPPERS

Peppers, regardless of the variety, are a low acid food and, unless they are pickled, must be processed in the steam pressure canner. For canning peppers that are not pickled, use the hot pack only. Wash, remove stem and core and cut peppers into chunks or leave whole. Boil for 3 minutes, drain. Pack hot into pint jars to within 1 inch of the rim, add 1 tablespoon white vinegar, and boiling water to within 1/2 inch of the rim. Cap. Process 35 minutes at 10 pounds pressure.

MOLD ON JAM

Mold on jam or jelly is usually caused by an imperfect seal and contamination. If any mold is found on jam or jelly, the entire contents of the jar should be discarded. The toxins from mold may seep through the jam or jelly and spoil the remainder of the product. For this reason it is an unsafe practice to remove the mold and use the balance.

ZUCCHINI PINEAPPLE

In some parts of the country recipes for "fake zucchini pineapple" or "pineapple substitute from zucchini" have been circulated and have aroused much interest. The product contains zucchini, lemon juice, sugar, and pineapple juice and is processed in the boiling water bath. There has been a great deal of concern over the safety of some of the recipes because the acidity level is a critical factor. The USDA has released a tested, safe recipe for zucchini pineapple.

The recommended recipe is:
4 quarts zucchini, grated or diced

1 1/2 cups bottled lemon juice (standardized acidity)
1 can (46 oz.) unsweetened pineapple juice
3 cups sugar

Coarsely grate or cut small cubes of zucchini after removing peel. Mix all ingredients thoroughly and simmer for 20 minutes. Stir frequently. Fill clean hot jars with hot zucchini mixture, leaving 1/2-inch headspace.

Be careful to distribute evenly the solids and liquid among the various jars. Process 20 minutes for pints and 25 minutes for quarts in boiling water bath. If there is a desire to add pineapple flavoring, it may be done in the mixture before simmering.

This recipe has been proven to be entirely safe and the processing adequate. By recommending this recipe, you may be able to head off the use of dangerous and borderline recipes.

CANNING CAUTION

Process foods immediately after they are packed into jars. If you let them sit at room temperature, you are permitting micro-organisms to thrive and thereby spoil the freshness of your canned product.

FREEZER COLESLAW

Here's one recipe for freezer coleslaw that tastes garden fresh.

1 medium cabbage shredded
1 carrot, grated
1 green pepper, chopped
1 teaspoon salt

Dressing:

1 cup vinegar
1/2 cup water
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon mustard seed

Mix salt with cabbage, let stand 1 hour. Press out excess water. Add carrot and green pepper.

Dressing: Combine all ingredients for dressing. Boil 1 minute. Cool to lukewarm, pour over cabbage mixture. Place in freezer containers and freeze. Storage time: 1 month.

Cooking up a storm

By Katy McGuire Caire

I'll never understand the notion so many cooks and diners have—that gourmet cooking and gourmet dining means a welter of expensive foods and complicated sauces and also complicated and expensive ways.

Far from it, in my opinion. Some of the finest cooks I know, true gourmet rank, often serve the simplest dishes, such as a creamy, herb-accented omelette; a savory beef stew laced with vin ordinaire (just ordinary red wine), and simmered and simmered atop the stove till tender and, all blended together, cucumber slivers blanketed in savory sour cream or yogurt and so on and so on.

And, tomatoes just off the vine, ripened at nature's own pace, never exposed to the icy blasts of cold storage, which takes away the special taste, and embellished only with vinegar, oil and the merest addition of herbs, especially basil, that's culinary bliss!

As I was leaving Mary Breath's home at the Bay Sunday, Mary gave me a trayful of just-out-of-the-garden tomatoes, apologizing meanwhile that some were so small, and perhaps I could cook them down into a sauce...well, I have news for Mary: I had eaten at least three out of hand before I crossed the Bay Bridge to Pass Christian Isles and my house...and you know how few miles lie in between! And when I reached home, I was still tomato-hungry, so I cooked up a batch of

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH TOMATOES

This is one of those "this-and-that" recipes, depending upon how many tomato slices you want to cook and so on, so please don't scream at me for not being specific!

Anyway, slice the tomatoes, dust well with flour, and sprinkle with pepper and a little salt (or omit the salt and get the true tomato taste). Cook very slowly in a little butter or margarine, and sprinkle sparingly with brown sugar.

Turn the slices with a broad spatula, and sprinkle ever so sparingly again with brown sugar, taking care not to let the butter or sugar burn.

When the slices are barely brown, pour cream over, covering the bottom of the skillet, and continue cooking until the cream is hot and well mixed with the butter and sugar. Place the tomato slices on a deep platter, pour the sauce over...and enjoy!

The River campus ready for new year

Everything is ready for the new year to begin here at Pearl River College. Pearl River College faculty members, including the Hancock, Forrest and Lamar Center staffs will meet in Moody Hall Auditorium on the Poplarville campus at 8:30 a.m. Monday, August 16. The PRC football Wildcats will actually be the first group to make it to campus as fall workouts will start Friday, Aug. 13. The String of Pearls band, flag and rifle corps and cheerleaders will report Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15 to begin preparation for the Wildcats' first game scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 2 against East Mississippi at Scooba. Freshman orientation and testing begins at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 17. Registration for athletes and supporting units starts at 1:00 p.m. that afternoon. All dormitories open at 3 p.m. Monday, Aug. 16.

Regular registration begins with sophomores Wednesday, Aug. 18. Freshmen begin at 1 p.m. that afternoon and will continue through Thursday, Aug. 19. The PRC commuter buses will begin regular routes Tuesday, Aug. 17. Buses will service all six counties supporting Pearl River College.

Pearl River class schedule includes seven class periods for Monday, Wednesday and Friday, while only four longer periods are set aside for Tuesday and Thursday. An activity period for all clubs and organizations is sandwiched between the 75 minute periods on Tuesday and Thursday.

It is possible for a student to arrange a full college load on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday permitting Tuesday and Thursday to be free; or a student can attend class on Tuesday and Thursday and is off the other days of the week.

A third alternative is to schedule classes for the mornings, Monday through Friday and have every afternoon off.

Fall classes begin Friday, August 20 at 8:15 a.m. Sophomores will register Wednesday, Aug. 18 beginning at 9 a.m. in the Academic Building according to last name alphabetical listing.

New, transfer and former students will begin registering also by the scheduled last name procedure at 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. and continue Thursday morning, Aug. 19 at 8 a.m. All registration should be completed Thursday.

Late registration begins Friday, Aug. 20 at 8:15 a.m. the same time classes actually begin. Students may change their schedule through Thursday, Sept. 2.

Registration is a very important aspect of getting off to a good school year and over the past few years the procedure has been streamlined considerably here at PRC.

"It is necessary that the registration schedule is followed to insure an orderly and fair registration system," Dr. Willis Lott, Director of Admissions, said, "that's why the registration times must be followed."

No student will be permitted to register earlier than scheduled time, however, a student may register after the appointed time. For more information contact Dr. Willis Lott at 795-4558.

ALAN PARKER: FILM DIRECTOR
When it comes to film directors, many come to mind. Martin Scorsese with his tough-minded films such as 'Mean Streets,' 'Taxi Driver' and 'Raging Bull'; Hal Ashby's contemporary classics such as 'Harold and Maude,' 'The Last Detail' and 'Coming Home'; or Robert Altman's provocative visions such as 'M*A*S*H,' 'McCabe and Mrs. Miller' and 'Nashville.'

But in recent years nobody has taken the lead like England's Alan Parker. Parker has made four films with an eagerly awaited fifth film on the way.

Parker broke into cinema with 'Bugsy Malone,' a gangster parody starring adolescents in the leading roles. Machine guns shot marshmallows, Jodie Foster played a moll and everyone talked tough in a kiddie kind of way.

Then 'Midnight Express' starring Brad Davis catapulted Parker into fame by receiving academy award nominations for best picture and director.

'Fame,' a highly energetic, joyous celebration of human imagination and talent followed 'Midnight Express.'

And this year Parker again fell solemn with his work, 'Shoot the Moon,' starring Albert Finney and Diane Keaton.

Advance word on Parker's latest venture, Pink Floyd's 'The Wall,' has been one rave after another.

What separates Parker from Scorsese, Ashby or Altman? A few reasons come quickly to mind.

Parker seems to pick his subject matter perfectly. His triad of impeccable works, beginning with 'Midnight Express,' represents a cross section of life, love and labor.

'Midnight Express,' is a gut-wrenching, violent experience in a world of Turkish prisons. William Hayes (Brad Davis) struggles through torture, humiliation, death and even murder. The dialogue is rank and explicit and so it should be.

There always seems to be a scene in a Parker film that lingers with you long after you've left the theater. In 'Midnight Express' that scene comes when Hayes is sentenced to life imprisonment after already serving four years.

What follows is an explosive display of acting, editing and fine writing. What Hayes says is not printable in this newspaper. But the outrage is genuine and the hurt is felt to the heart.

'Fame' must have been a lark following a film as depressing as 'Midnight Express.' 'Fame' is a vibrant, optimistic film that never lets up. In the film, Parker displays that he is the master of the "incredible edit."

Snippets of film, some lasting no longer than one second, flash before your eyes in staccato fashion. Images pound the brain like a kettle drum: the lady having her sunglasses slapped off her face on a street corner; a dainty, pointed ballet toe being ground gently in yellow quartz; and Mrs. Finney snapping those outrageous Polaroids with an automatic. With its raucous musical score provided by Bruce Davis and written by Christopher YOUNG, Parker takes 'Fame' really to control and guides the vehicle smooth and steady; all the while adding a sublime element of suicidal terror, eliciting fine performances from a cast of unknowns and pacing himself brilliantly. When the orchestra reaches its crashing crescendo during 'I Sing The Body Electric,' you want to leap to your feet in a standing ovation.

And this year Parker stretched himself tremendously by directing a deep, brooding drama about a disintegrating American family, 'Shoot the Moon.'

Finney and Keaton star as George and Faith Dunlap, a fairly typical American family complete with four darling children. But from the opening sequence you realize something is terribly wrong in the Dunlap house.

Parker slows his camera down for this drama. Catching painful close-ups and building on a series of climaxes provided by the unvarnished pain etched on everyone's face. Finney or Keaton have never been better.

And new comer, Dana Hill, playing the eldest of the Dunlap children, is something special.

And for visualization, Parker's last scene in this remarkable film will be indelibly burned into your mind. It's that good!

Parker is a wonderful director making classics each time he sets out to make a film. One can only hope that 'The Wall' will live up to all its cinematic hype. And even if it doesn't, the three films mentioned in this article prove that Alan Parker is one of the best directors working today.

Dunbar, Berns wed at Christ Episcopal

Christ Episcopal Church in Bay St. Louis was the setting for the July 24 wedding of Barbara Ann Berns and Thaddeus Parker Dunbar.

The bride is a daughter of retired Navy Capt. and Mrs. Max Arnold Berns of Waveland. The groom's parents are retired Air Force Col. James R. Dunbar and Dr. Lala Dunbar of Waynesboro, Miss.

Rev. Charles R. Johnson officiated at the 2 p.m. double ring ceremony. Musical selections were provided by Mrs. Ben Hill Jr. of Bay St. Louis.

Arrangements of white full poms, pink and white carnations and palm greenery decorated the altar and sanctuary. Fern garlands, baby's breath and rose pink satin bows were gracefully draped on the communion rail. Similar greenery and bows marked the aisle pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk organza fashioned along princess lines and featuring a high ring collar. Venice lace appliques enhanced the neckline, sleeves and bodice, and continued in a double row down the soft folds of the front and circling the chapel length train. A caplet of Venice lace embellished with seed pearls held a tiered waltz length veil of illusion.

She carried a silk cascade of phalaenopsis orchids, astramaria lilies, tuberose, lily-of-the-valley and variegated philodendron with satin ribbon streamers. Lin Bromwell of Inverness, Fla. served the bride as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Stephanie Eubank and Anne Segar of Norfolk, Va.; Mary Strasser of New Orleans and Sharon Dunbar of Fort Washington, Md., sister of the groom.

The attendants were identically attired in formal gowns of Swiss rose chiffon over taffets, fashioned with fitted bodices, featuring sheer yokes of point d'esprit edged with schiffli lace, standup collars, and lace peplums below the waistlines. They wore hats in a matching color, banded with seed pearl embroidered schiffli lace, and caught up at the back with a tulle pouf and streamers.

They carried silk nosegays of rose hue astramaria lilies, tuberose and lily-of-the-valley.

Timothy Dunbar of Matherville, Miss., served his brother as best man.

Groomsmen were David Campocharo and Benjamin Read of Oxford, Miss.; Blaise Duffy of Yonkers, N.Y. and James Munson of Kennebunkport, Maine.

The mother of the bride chose for the occasion a street length pink linen dress fashioned with double ruffled organza sleeves and slim skirt, with matching accessories and orchid corsage.

The groom's mother was attired in a beige chiffon street length dress with softly printed muted floral bodice. An orchid corsage and matching accessories completed her ensemble.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club.

Natural green and variegated foliage arrangements provided the background on the mantel for the flower decorated bride's table, which held a tiered wedding cake topped and encircled with flowers.

Mrs. John E. Dougher of Waveland, sister of the bride, kept the guest register. Ms. Judy Berns of Hollywood, Calif., sister of the bride, assisted at the cake table.

For traveling to Ocho Rios, Jamaica, the bride chose a peach linen suit with sheer print tucked blouse.

The couple will reside in New Orleans.

Out-of-town guests included Navy Cmdr. Tom Berns and Ms. Janice Drawing of Key West, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Blake Shepherd of Virginia Beach, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Eubank of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. R. A. Dunbar and Ms. Deanna Duncan of San Diego, Calif.; Dr. and Mrs. Alex Mathers, Terrence Mathers and Cester Mathers of Mathersville, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. John Stagg of Waynesboro, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. John Mathers of Mobile, Ala.; Miss Kim Snellgrove of Batesville, Miss. and Lt. THE ABUNDANT LIFE

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." —John 10:10

By Shawn Murphy

MINISTER, BAY ST. LOUIS CHURCH OF CHRIST

Love is obviously the most popular theme in the world today. It is the foremost subject to be found in the world of song, theatre or literature. It is also the one thing sought after by more people than anything else.

And yet, of all of the volumes of literature ever written on the subject, none is more prolific than the Apostle Paul's essay and masterpiece found in the thirteenth chapter of his first letter to the church in Corinth.

While the entire chapter is excellent, verses four through eight hit at the true expression of real love.

"Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It is not rude, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices in the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres. Love never fails." (1 Corinthians 13:4-8) What I want to share with you this morning is this passage from God's perspective. I hope it holds as much meaning for you as it does for me. It is written by Dick Dickenson of Long Beach, California and is entitled:

BECAUSE GOD LOVES ME

Because God loves me He is slow to lose patience with me.

Because God loves me He takes the circumstances of my life and uses them in a constructive way for my growth.

Because God loves me He does not treat me as an object to be possessed and manipulated.

Because God loves me He has no need to impress me with how great and powerful He is because He is God and does He belittle me as His child in order to show me how important He is.

Because God loves me He is for me. He wants to see me mature and develop in His love.

Because God loves me He does not send down His wrath on every little mistake I make of which there are many.

Because God loves me, He does not keep score of all my sins and then beat me over the head with them whenever He gets the chance.

Because God loves me He is deeply grieved when I do not walk in the ways that please Him because He sees this as evidence that I don't trust Him and love Him as I should.

Because God loves me He rejoices when I experience His power and strength and stand up under the pressures of life for His Name's sake.

Because God loves me He keeps on working patiently with me even when I feel like giving up and can't see why

He doesn't give up with me, too.

Because God loves me He keeps on trusting me when at times I don't even trust myself.

Because God loves me He never says there is no hope for you, rather, He patiently works with me, loves me and disciplines me in such a way that it is hard for me to understand the depth of His concern for me.

Because God loves me He never forsakes me; even though many of my friends might.

Because God loves me He stands with me when I have reached the 'rock' bottom of despair, when I see the real me and compare that with His righteousness, holiness, beauty and love. It is at a moment like this that I can really believe that God loves me.

Yes, the greatest of all gifts is God's perfect love!

Pearlington Branch

THE MORMONS

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Approximately 150 members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and their non-member guests took part in an old-fashioned, family-style community picnic on Saturday, July 24 in Pearlington.

The event was hosted by the Pearlington branch of the church; and those attending came from areas encompassing the Waveland Ward, Picayune Ward, and Chalmette Ward of the church as well as from the Pearlington Branch.

Thomas Bosley of the Hattiesburg Stake High Council acted as master of ceremonies.

Participants were awarded ribbons in various contests and games, including sack races, three-legged races, egg toss, egg relay, baked goods judging, jams and preserves judging, handicrafts and best-dressed "pioneer".

Other games for which awards were not given but enjoyed by all were: volleyball, horseshoes, marbles, and tug o' wars.

The children also took part in a treasure hunt for buried nickles and dimes and had fun on tire swings hung from beautiful oak trees.

The picnic was held in commemoration of an event which is very important to Mormons all over the world. In early 1847 the Mormons were persecuted and driven from their homes in Nauvoo, Ill.

Then after a long trek across the central plains in search of a place to worship in peace, they entered the valley of the Great Salt Lake in Utah. That was on July 24, 1847, and to this day the headquarters of the church is located in Salt Lake City.

Roderick Pillingham graciously loaned the use of his property for the picnic.

Knight's notes

By PETER SCIANNA
After an absence of several months, we are very happy to report that the Knights' Notes are back. We are very happy to be able to report what has been going on in the Pere LeDuc Council beginning with the installation of our officers for the 1982-83 year.

Most Reverend Bishop Joseph L. Howze was an honored guest at the Pere LeDuc installation at the Council Hall Tuesday night, July 27.

Mississippi State Deputy Don Oldmixon and new District Deputy Paulino Carubba installed the officers at the ceremony and presented the new officers with jewels signifying their respective positions and duties.

Bob Hubbard was re-instated as grand knight for his third consecutive term. Oldmixon cited Hubbard for his leadership in the revitalization of the Bay St. Louis council, which, according to the state deputy, "has always been a leader in the Mississippi Knights of Columbus."

Mel Estrade was installed as deputy grand knight and relinquished his former office of chancellor to Lucien J. Gelis.

Joe Reier Jr. is the council's new financial secretary. Returning for their second consecutive terms as council officers are Ed Friloux, advocate; Chris Austin, lecturer; Richard Smith, treasurer; and Peter Scianna, recorder.

Leslie Blaise will serve as the council warden, while Anthony J. Scavo, Tony Morreale and Morgan O'Rourke will serve as inside and outside guards.

Theodore Morel will begin a three-year term as trustee, joining George DiBenedetto and C.J. Piazza on the board of trustees.

During the ceremony Bishop Howze reminded the council of its obligations to the church, to its people, and to God.

Oldmixon spoke of the progress of the Knights of Columbus in the state, to which the Pere LeDuc council has contributed, and hopes to see his goal of every parish served by a council realized in the near future.

Hubbard expressed his appreciation to the Ladies Auxiliary for "their splendid job" working at the ceremonies and a special thanks to Henry Jay Heitzman for stepping in as master of ceremonies at the last moment.

We understand Tony Morreale has been a little ill lately and we hope he has a speedy recovery. "Tony served as council outside guard for over 40 years," states the grand knight, "and in fact has been this year by acclamation to serve yet another term."

During this column's absence, the council lost two of its dearest friends. The Knights offer their condolences to the families of Mr. William Steele, who was an honorary life member of the council, and Mrs. Viola (Carl) Arnold.

We welcome to the council David Fabella, Gerard Godfrey, and Gerard Freeman, who served as grand knight in this council years ago. We wish our new Brother Knights 'good luck' as they join our fraternal organization.

We wish a safe and happy voyage to the Mississippi delegation, including State Deputy Oldmixon, on its upcoming trip to Hartford, Conn. to join in the celebration of the centennial of the founding of the Knights of Columbus.

Financial Secretary Joe Reier reminds members who have not yet paid their annual dues to please do so as his deadline for collection nears.

You can mail your payments to Joseph P. Reier, c/o The Knights of Columbus, 231 Cornish Drive, Bay St. Louis, Ms. 39520, or pay at the council meetings.

The council's first August meeting will be in the upstairs chamber, Monday night at 8 p.m. An executive meeting will be held at 7 p.m.

DRUG QUIZ

by Curt Scarborough, Ph.D.
 Used by permission; all rights reserved by DATE, St. Louis, Mo.

QUESTION Persons who smoke tobacco regularly:

- Die of lung cancer at a rate of ten times that of non-smokers
- Die of heart disease at a rate twice that of non-smokers
- Have a life expectancy of several years less than non-smokers
- All of the above

ANSWER—According to the American Cancer Society, the greatest single cause of preventable death in the U.S. today is cigarette smoking. Three hundred thousand deaths (1 out of every 7) in our country this year will be caused in part by cigarette smoking. Men of 25, who never smoked regularly, can have a life expectancy of 9 more years than men who smoke one pack or more a day.
 Correct answer - d.

QUESTION—Which of these four major classifications of drugs speeds up the body processes?

- Narcotics
- Depressants
- Stimulants
- Hallucinogens

ANSWER—A stimulant is a substance which accelerates the functions controlled by the central nervous system. These drugs are often prescribed for fatigue, depression, and obesity. Stimulants are used by long-distance truck drivers trying to stave off sleep, by athletes trying to get "up" for the big game, by students cramming for exams, and by housewives to give them more "pep".
 Correct answer - c.

QUESTION—Which of these common drinks contains the largest amount of alcohol?

- A 12-ounce can of beer
- A 5-ounce glass of wine
- A 1½-ounce jigger of whiskey
- All contain the same amount

ANSWER—A 12-ounce can of 5% beer contains .6 ounce of alcohol. A 5-ounce serving of 12% wine contains .6 ounce of alcohol. A 1½-ounce shot of light (80 proof) 40% whiskey contains .6 ounce of alcohol.
 Correct answer - d.

QUESTION—The use of cigarettes has been demonstrated to have the following result on the human body:

- Faster reaction time
- Drop in mental efficiency
- More muscle power
- Increased heart efficiency

ANSWER—Nicotine, a poison often used as a weed killer, reduces physical and mental stamina and endurance. It inhibits the nerves controlling muscle tissue, resulting in slower reaction time, less muscle power, and reduced heart efficiency. Tests have shown more than a 10% drop in mental efficiency after smoking.
 Correct answer - b.
